

A black and white photograph of a cluster of bell-shaped flowers, possibly a species of bellflower (Campanula), hanging from a stem. The flowers are light-colored, possibly white or pale yellow, and are arranged in a dense, elongated cluster. The background is dark and out of focus, showing more foliage and possibly other flowers. The lighting is soft, highlighting the delicate structure of the petals and the curve of the bell shape.

Silvery Water and Starry Earth

Sofie Berzon Mackie was born in 1984 in London. She made Aliya to Israel at the age of 7 and lived since then in Kibbutz Be'eri.

For 3 years Berzon MacKie photographed her living room. Working with natural light and digital collages, she deepened her exploration of themes of motherhood, identity, love and loss, her generational heritage as an immigrant, and her lifelong journey of finding her place in the world.

Her solo show “Silvery Water and Starry Earth” will open January 12th at Studio of Her Own Gallery in Jerusalem. It will include photographs from her home in Be'eri and its surroundings, along with photographs of her childhood home in London, trying to recreate memories of both places now lost.
